THE OPENER/CORKSCREW COLLECTOR'S WORD SEARCH PUZZLE-(PART 1)

Below are 72 alpha-numeric designations we use in our collecting. Each has filler dots which represent letters of a word or abbreviation found in the complete listing for that designation. For example, I-17-88 is I-17-88 MRBOH from I-17-88 NATIONAL BOHEMIAN BEER / (MR. BOH). Decipher them all and if you think you have the correct solution, send it to me for a JFO prize. It must have the earliest postmark to win. The official solution will appear in the JAN. 1994 issue of our newsletter as part of a complete puzzle. GOOD HUNTING!

Here are photographs of some of the corkscrews in my collection.

1. Bull holding Champion bar mount corkscrew which once belonged to Al Capone. Purchased in the IRS auction of Capone's Lake Geneva estate.
2. Bull in front of one corkscrew display board
3. Corkscrew collector Don Bull in Norway looking for corkscrews
4. Bonnie Bull in Norway wondering why they are looking for corkscrews
5. Part of the Bull collection
6. All beer advertising corkscrews. In the left foreground is a corkscrew which was owned by New York brewer Gottfried Piel.
7. All beer advertising knives on display for ICCA meeting event at the Bull's house..
8. Anheuser Busch beer advertising knives. Second row left and fourth row right both have two stanhopes.
9. Beer advertising knives with corkscrews.
10. Beer advertising knives with corkscrews. The knife second from left in top right has a worm which slides to the right before being pulled down. Second from the left in last row is marked Lembeck & Betz Eagle Brewing on blades only - not very visible advertising.
11. Beer advertising knives with corkscrews. The four left in pieces in the top four rows are turn of the century salesman's samples from Christian's Knife Co. in Solingen, Germany. The advertise Golden Horn Brewing, Reiger & Gretz, S. Liebmann's Sons and Hudson Country Consumers Brewing Company.
12. Beer advertising knives with corkscrews
13. Beer advertising knives bottle shaped
14. Beer advertising knives
15. Beer advertising knives. The Ruppert knife in the fourth row is a trick knife opened by pulling on the ring at the right end.
16. Beer advertising knives. The left three in the top three rows were owned by Arthur Storz of the Storz Brewing Co. in Omaha, Nebraska.
17. Beer advertising knives. In the third and fourth columns are 9 knives which swivel out and turn from the surrounding frames. Only three have cap lifters.
18. Beer advertising knives, fingernail clippers, money clips and box cutters. The West Virginia Brewing Co. piece at lower right is a box cutter.
19. Beer advertising knives. The two knives at upper middle are floating fish knives.
20. Knives with corkscrews - non-beer. The bottle shape knives are all French.
21. Knives with corkscrews - non-beer. Here are a number of stag handle and pearl handle knives in near mint condition.
22. Knives with corkscrews - non-beer
23. Knives with corkscrews - non-beer. Camping sets such as those shown in the top row range from simple to elegant. Bull is looking for complete sets in fine cases.
24. Roundlets - silver and gold. Third row left is the Fairchild patent of August 21, 1888.

25. Roundlets and folding figural. The pocket corkscrew at left center has the mark of Samuel Pemberton, Birmingham, England 1700s. The nickel plated legs advertise Loerzel Brothers Lager from Saugerties, New York (closed 1893). The legs fourth from left bottom row are unusual in that there is advertising on the small flat above the worm and it is for Val Blatz Brewing Company of Milwaukee, Wisconsin!.
26. Miscellaneous Pocket corkscrews. Second from the left bottom is a late eighteenth century folding pocket corkscrew.
27. French mechanical corkscrews. The four left pieces are by J. H. Perille.
28. Some patent corkscrews. Second from the right in the top row is Charles Chinnock's 1862 patent.
29. Concertina style. At top left is a rare double version of Marshall Wier's Compound Lever. Wier patented his single "lazy tongs" in 1884 in England.
30. Early corkscrews. Top right is an unusual unmarked piece.
31. Unusual corkscrews. Top left is a folding knife and pistol. The French crescent wrench has several tools in addition to the corkscrew.
32. Silver and ornate. The two at top left are for cheese. The three at top right have cigar tools.
33. Rare figurals. The bulldog, Pickwick figure and elephant have holes into which the worm sheath is inserted to serve as the handle.
34. Victorian corkscrews. Bone handles and unusual shanks.
35. Carved handles with silver caps. In the middle is a boar's head. At bottom right is an alligator.
36. Folding bows. They come in many sizes and shapes.
37. Multi-tool folding bows. Bull wants some with more tools!
38. Perfume corkscrews from ladies' dressing tables.
39. Peg & worm, Pocket corkscrews and unusual eyebrow in that it is Silver
40. Miniature. Some of Bull's favorites.
41. Scandinavian and silver. A Norwegian patent is at lower left.
42. Figural. Note "Hootch Hound" at bottom middle.
43. Figural
44. Figural. The dog at top right is marked "Crosby Pup." The rumor is that Bing Crosby had 50 of these made as gifts. To row center is a rare Scotty dog which has a corkscrew folding to the underside.
45. Champagne taps for pouring off champagne and keeping it fresh.
46. Beer advertising letter openers. Bull's current collecting passion.
47. Beer advertising letter openers
48. Rare French dragon figure. From Marseilles. Purchased in a lined jeweler's box marked prominently with the initials "L.M." Bull says it stands for "Lucky Me."
49. A few parrots
50. "Old Snifter" corkscrews
51. From the Bull collection of 400+ corkscrew postcards
52. A "small" collection of corkscrews
53. "Bernie the Flasher"
